Conflict Minerals Declaration

Multibrackets Europe AB confirms that, according to available supply chain documentation, there is no reported origin in conflict-affected or high-risk areas for tantalum, tin, tungsten or gold (3TG) in the products covered by that documentation.

This declaration concerns the origin of the minerals. Metals such as tin may be present in electronic components. The presence of such a metal does not in itself mean that a product contains minerals associated with conflict.

This declaration is based on reported supply chain information available at the date of issue and applies to the products covered by that information. For details about a specific product or the scope of this declaration, please contact support@multibrackets.com.
